

Sättele GmbH & Co. KG, Todtnau / Germany

Specialist for technical brushes

The family business was founded by Josef Sättele in 1915 in the Black Forest town of Todtnau.

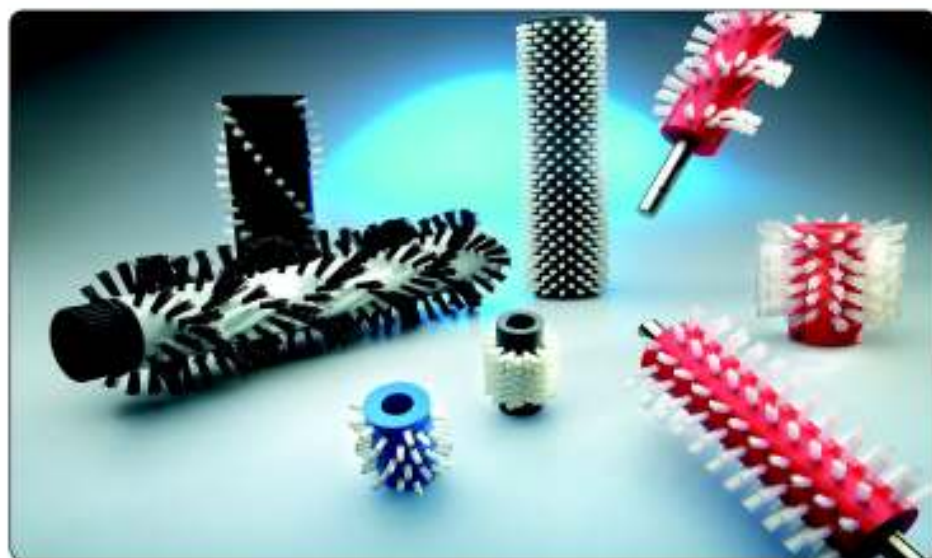

To begin with, Sättele GmbH engaged principally in the production of brushes used in the household, including clothes brushes, shoe shine brushes, brooms and hand brushes. Now, as then, many of the brush backs are manufactured in-house, in both wooden and synthetic designs to offer customers as comprehensive a range of products as possible. The high vertical range of manufacture allows shortest lead times and a high grade of flexibility.

After World War II, Sättele GmbH began focussing on the manufacture of brushes for the vacuum cleaner industry. Besides technical brushes for application in industry and trade, this line has to this day remained one of the company's main pillars of business.

At the end of the 1950's, Gehard Sättele, the founder's grandson, joined the company. By focussing on continuous know-how growth and further development, Sättele has become a "brush maker" offering best product quality. Close collaboration with customers, shortest delivery times and an optimum cost-performance ratio has made Sättele a reliable "brush partner". With these components, the company aims to keep their existing customer base happy and to be able to source new customers and markets.

Owing to the company's broad assortment and high vertical range of manufacture, the brushes made by Sättele are utilised for intelligent process improvement and creative manufacturing solutions across a wide range of applications and uses, in both the industrial and consumer goods industries.

Besides classic technical brush designs for industrial applications such as strip brushes, disk brushes, cylinder brushes, belt brushes, end brushes, etc. the company also provide special designs to meet individual customer requirements, even in smallest of batches. Another company specialty is the creation of hand-filled brushes, which for some applications are absolutely indispensable, and which are in frequent demand from Sättele GmbH.

A sophisticated machinery outfit and high standard of competence and specialist knowledge permit the company to manufacture a variety of brushes with the highest degree of efficiency. The brushes are made to pattern or drawing, or according to individual specifications developed in close collaboration with the customer.

In 2007, Gerhard Sättele's son Michael joined the family business. His training and subsequent degree in business administration, combined with many years' experience in the business has permitted a smooth transition to fourth generation family management. Sättele

GmbH will continue to fill customer requirements and give them full satisfaction in future, too.
